- The sensors provide the instructor with information about the pressure depth and speed in the integrated display on the scenario controller.
- The arrows above and below the respective values indicate whether, for example, the button is pressed too quickly or too deeply.
- Thanks to the intelligent sensor recognition, even with larger teams, only the sensor that is also performing cardiopulmonary resuscitation is displayed in the controller.
- In the controller, the instructor gets to a more detailed menu in which the last two minutes are graphically displayed in order to be able to better assess the progress and quality of cardiopulmonary resuscitation.
- Readings: Ratio of successful and unsuccessful compressions in %, CPR fraction in %, Average team performance and logbook.
